

3. This Day in History

On this DAY.

In all seriousness, we already know that the best thing that happened on the day that you were born is YOU.

However, in the big wide world we live in, other maybe not so significant events also took place. So along with your birthday each year - you may find there are a few famous people who celebrate the day with you or some major events that took place on this day.

This page prompt tends to also overlap in some areas to the YEAR IT WAS, which is the next page so you may want to work on them together.

Some of you may find something very significant happened on the same day you were born e.g. They landed on the moon. For me, besides a major earthquake in 1456 where thousands were killed in Naples, there were only smaller trival events that occurred. So, I will be including pictures of smaller things to fill my page such as; the price of milk, bread or petrol, population of Australia, who the Prime Minister was at the time etc etc.

Again you can design your layout in any format you wish and use the title in a completely different way. However, if you would like to create a page based on the sketch showed here you will need to download the pdf from our website.

Download PDF - <https://unmistakablecreations.com/wp-content/uploads/2020/05/On-This-Day-Polaroids.pdf>

Print the PDF onto white or a pale coloured cardstock. Either cut out the polaroids from this sheet or use as a template and create your own from coloured cardstock.

If using the printed cutoutable polaroids, with a craft knife carefully remove the black centres and adhere behind each one a photo of the event that took place.

Write or type the title of the event onto a strip of white cardstock and adhere across the frame - to add dimension you could adhere using foam tape. Journal on each of the frames the details of the event or price etc. e.g. Title - Prime Minister
Journalling - Sir Robert Menzies

Create your background, and adhere the polaroids, not forgetting to include one photograph of yourself but only bigger.

Print out the quotes from the PDF and cut into strips and adhere if desired.
